A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITIES

Dear Readers

Alpine Center, the Hospitality & Tourism Management Department of City Unity Education Group, continues to attract and develop a considerable growing number of 'talented' men and women aspiring for exciting careers in the hospitality industry. A primary reason for this influx of students to enroll on our Swiss and British programmes of study in hospitality management, culinary arts, events management and more, is the employability—and growth—factor! Our students and graduates are very high in demand by hotels and hospitality organizations all over the globe that give them opportunities to grow and prosper in their careers.

Attracting, developing and retaining 'talent' is at the core of hospitality businesses' competitive advantage, because it is the talented people that hotels and hospitality organizations are seriously searching for. Why do we refer to them as 'talent' ? Because they are the ones that, with their passion for working in the industry, attract, develop and retain customers who choose their brands and return, thus boosting their revenues. Talent is widely known as the main driver of business success. Therefore, all the large, medium and small hospitality enterprises are trying their best to attract talent and retain them.

Students & Graduates! We are inundated with opportunities for you, pouring in from all the leading chains of hotels as well as independent hotels, restaurants, booking companies, and in general service oriented organizations. Stay focused, stay tuned, the world is your oyster and we're so privileged to 'build your character, and give you wings to build your career'!

CELEBRITY CHEFS

Our Culinary Arts Programme features Celebrity Chefs as Instructors

This year students enrolled on our Culinary Arts programme, years 1 and 2, had the privilege of being instructed by three super Chef Instructors! Georgia Kofinas, Food writer, cookbook author, and chef instructor!

Georgia Kofinas teaches Mediterranean Cuisine and wears different hats for each class. Take a look

CHEF GIORGIO SPANAKIS

Italian Greek, who was initiated into the secrets of the kitchen following his father who owns the restaurant “Tanagra” in Rome. Settled now in Greece with his family, he’s been involved in TV shows with SKY, Nett and now with Antenna TV. He also has a website www.i-food.gr where his visitors have access to a full cooking guide with many recipes, and much more. Besides teaching his student the art of authentic Italian cuisine, he introduced them to raw vegan cuisine, and gave them the opportunity to train with him at some functions hosted by the Italian Ambassador at the Residence of the Italian Embassy where he is the designated Chef for Events and Functions.

CHEF SPIROS PAVLIDIS

Executive Chef at the renowned Cookoovaya Restaurant in Athens, is a certified Culinary Instructor who has great passion for teaching second year students the art of baking and cooking, designing and presenting very trendy dishes, having trained in Italy and Switzerland and worked in Michelin Star restaurants.

OUR FACULTY & STAFF

Faculty and staff members understand first-hand the importance of giving to Alpine Center!

Ask any student why they love studying at Alpine Center, their first answer is “because of the very caring faculty and staff who give us the feeling of ‘home away from home’”. Indeed, from the Academic Dean to all the faculty and administrative staff, a high commitment to the success of the students is evident and demonstrated by their tireless efforts to be available for them whenever needed. A highly qualified cadre of professionals both in academia and in the profession of hospitality and tourism, utilize a range of innovative learning and teaching strategies to create a high quality student learning experience.

“EXPLORING HOSPITALITY & TOURISM LANDSCAPES”

City Unity College hosted a Field Visit by students from Cardiff Metropolitan University (UK) and Varna University of Management (Bulgaria) from 26 March to 2 April 2017.

“Exploring Hospitality & Tourism Landscapes” is a unique core module offered on the MSc International Hospitality & Tourism Management degree programme offered at Cardiff Metropolitan University in the UK and at its affiliated campuses, City Unity College in Greece and Varna University of Management in Bulgaria.

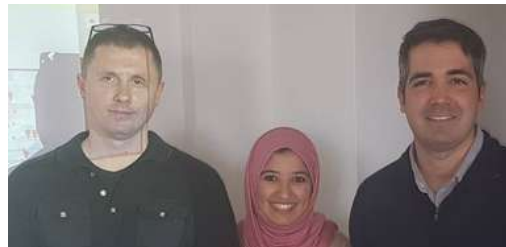

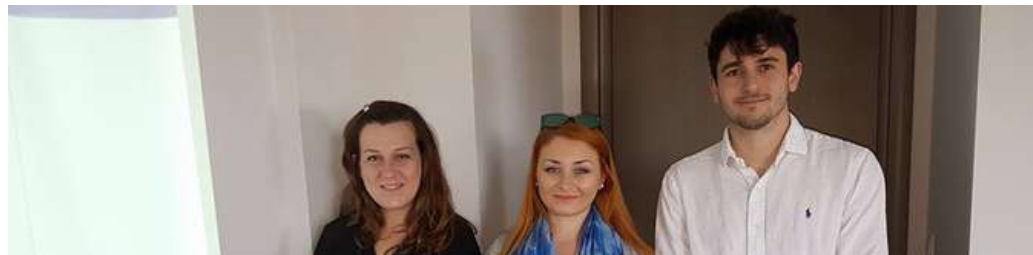

Cardiff Metropolitan University has been recognised for the internationalisation of their Masters programme; specifically for this module, “Exploring Hospitality and Tourism Landscapes”, which received a prestigious award in December 2016 at the ATHE conference (Association for Tourism in Higher Education). The award, Making the Case for Tourism and Globalisation in Teaching, was sponsored by ABTA (Association of British Travel Agents). It acknowledges the commitment and depth of internationalisation within teaching made by Cardiff Metropolitan University’s Department for Tourism, Hospitality and Event Management.

“The aim of the University’s winning module “Exploring Hospitality and Tourism Landscapes”, is to give students from the different campuses the opportunity to experience and assess physical and cultural resources which contribute to hospitality and tourism identities” explained Dr Caroline Ritchie, Module Leader and Reader in Hospitality, at Cardiff Metropolitan University.

“The benefit to the students involved in the international field study is immense and extends intercultural learning far beyond the classroom environment” she added. Students spend a week at one of the partner campuses participating in a field study in a rural region chosen by the local institution in which hospitality and tourism is underdeveloped. The students explore ways in which the hospitality and tourism provision of the region could be enhanced in order to contribute positively towards its re/development.

“EXPLORING HOSPITALITY & TOURISM LANDSCAPES”

This year, City Unity College’s Alpine Hospitality & Tourism Management Department, located in Glyfada, hosted students from Cardiff Metropolitan University and Varna University of Management, and together with its own students—a total of 25 representing 11 nationalities. The field study was to explore the potential of developing the hospitality and tourism offering in the Lavriotiki and Sounion region, particularly Lavriotiki. The field study began when the students and their accompanying professors, Dr Caroline Ritchie and Dr Diane Sedgley (CME), Mrs Irena Erbakanova (VUM) and Professor Michael Vastardis (CUC) were welcomed by the Mayor of Lavrion to the Old City Hall. The Mayor gave a talk on the history of the region and the strategic plans for its future. Mrs Petroula Dourabeis from the Technological and Cultural Park of Lavrion guided the group through the town and local attractions the Technological and Cultural Park, Municipality Cultural Center, Lavro Marina, and the Fish Market. She also gave a fascinating talk on the cultural and industrial heritage of the region. In addition, the students visited rural attractions in this ancient silver mining area, the Temple of Poseidon, the Big Hole and the Mineralogical Museum - staffed by volunteers who were ex miners themselves.

Guest lecturers at the campus included Mr Georgios Dracopoulos, CEO of Tourism Generis and Advisor to the UNWTO, and Mr Vlasios Lapatas, Travel Developer of Enter to Travel. The week culminated with the students presenting their findings in mixed groups drawn from across the three universities. The students provided an overview of the current hospitality and tourism provision and critically evaluated the current challenges facing the region including tourism facilities and infrastructure, visitor services, access, local and national economic performance, the political situation and competitor destinations. This forms the basis of their second assessment, to be completed on their home campuses, the production of destination management plans for the Lavriotiki and Sourion region. These may support further development of the current regional strategic plan.

ALPINE CENTER HOSTS THE EUROPEAN LUXURY HOSPITALITY SUMMIT

Alpine Center hosted the European Luxury Hospitality Summit in Athens in May 2016 giving its hospitality and events management students the opportunity to assist in the organization and hosting of guests at this global event.

Barak Hirschowitz, President ILHA, Dimitris Tryfonopoulos, General Secretary of Greek National Tourism Organization, Sybil Hofmann, President, International Programs, Alpine Center, the Swiss Business School for Hotel & Tourism Management, Elena Sergeeva, Founder of Passion for Greece

The summit opened with Mr. Dimitris Tryfonopoulos, General Secretary of Greek National Tourism Organization, on behalf of the alternate Greek Minister of Tourism, Ms. Elena Kountoura; and was hosted by Elena Sergeeva, an Alpine Center graduate and founder of several professional blogs including Passion for Greece and co-founder of Travel Bloggers Greece, the first travel bloggers network in the country.

The summit included 19 speakers, 12 information sessions, two workshops, and several networking opportunities.

EUROPEAN LUXURY HOSPITALITY SUMMIT

Featured speakers included Peter Fulton – Group President of Europe, Middle East, Africa (EAME)/Southwest Asia and Executive Vice President at Hyatt Hotels Corporation – who presented “The Future of Food and Beverage in Luxury Hotels.” Hotels are sitting on empty restaurants, with guests flocking elsewhere to eat. The solution? Fulton advised hotels to let chefs be more creative as well as hire employees within the market they are trying to serve. For example, if your target is millennials, hotels should have more millennials on staff.

Georgios Drakopoulos – President & CEO of Tourism Generis, and Special Adviser to the Secretary General of the United Nations World Tourism Organization – spoke on “Managing Tourism in Times of Crisis.” Drakopoulos addressed the impact of a country’s economic turmoil and how Greece is struggling with talent shortage and lack of expertise as qualified professionals are leaving the country.

The chairman of Historic Hotels of Europe, Barbara Avdis, led “Historic Hotels: The Art of Understated Luxury & Emotional Experience.” Avdis focused on the role emotions play in creating memories and building relationships with guests. “As guardians of the stories and places of the past and hosts of the present, we treasure our History and wish to preserve it,” she said.

Carina Svensen – Global Brand Director of Quorvus Collection – presented a highly engaging session on “The New Definition of Luxury”. The audience left with a better understanding of how to create memorable experiences for their guests, taking into consideration how modern luxury has experienced fundamental shifts and the need for hotels to adopt a more multicultural mindset.

This was the first time ILHA organized a European summit and we are proud to say it was a huge success. We look forward to hosting future conferences in Europe and beyond.

The International Luxury Hotel Association (ILHA) is the preeminent organization unifying, promoting and advancing the luxury hospitality industry. We are a global non-profit connecting hotel and travel professionals in more than 90 countries. The ILHA provides its members with the valuable resources and insights to ensure they stay competitive in the luxury hospitality industry.
